

PLATE CI.

- |  | PAGE |
|--|------|
| Figs. 1, 2. Scleroplegma conicum , O. Schmidt,  | 351  |
| Fig. 1. Inner view of a half of a macerated and longitudinally bisected specimen, from a photograph; natural size.           |      |
| Fig. 2. Portion of the macerated dictyonal framework; $\times 100$ .   |      |
| Figs. 3-8. Margaritella caeloptychioides , F. E. S.,  | 351  |
| Fig. 3. Vertical section of the outer part of the skeleton, with the loose spicules in their natural position; $\times 50$ . |      |
| Fig. 4. Dermal pentact with nodulate rays; $\times 100$ .  |      |
| Fig. 5. Star-like oxyhexaster with very short principal and long undulating terminal rays; $\times 300$ .                    |      |
| Fig. 6. Oxyhexaster with long terminal rays; $\times 300$ .  |      |
| Fig. 7. Star-like sphærohexaster with a solid spherical centre covering the very short principal rays; $\times 300$ .        |      |
| Fig. 8. Small sphærohexaster; $\times 300$ .   |      |